Eli A. Round Dies; Leader in World Chain-Making Field

Eli A. Round, recognized as one of the nation's foremost authorities on the manufacture of chain, died yesterday in St. Luke's Hospital at the age of 78.

A native of Cleveland, he was the son of David Round, blacksmith and chain manufacturer here following the Civil War. In 1907 Eli Round assisted his cousin, the late Louis D. Round, in forming the Cleveland Chain & Manufacturing Co.

ELI A. ROUND

The company grew from a small shop at Broadway and Canton Avenue S. E. to become one of the largest chain manufacturing concerns in the world.

At the time of his death, Mr. Round was vice-president and director of the company and its five subsidiaries. These include the Bridgeport Chain & Manufacturing Co. of Bridgeport, Conn.; the Seattle Chain & Manufacturing Co. of Seattle; the Round California Chain Co. of San Francisco and the Woodhouse Chain Works, Trenton, N. J.

Known throughout the chain industry as an expert on production methods, Mr. Round was largely responsible during World War II for the Cleveland concern's heavy production of anchor chain, ship's chain and other chain widely used by the armed forces.

He was a member of the Miles Avenue Christian Church.

A Mason, Mr. Round belonged to Iris Lodge, the Allenby Commandery, Knights Templar and Al Koran Shrine.

An early resident of old Newburgh, Mr. Round later moved to 3310 Daleford Road, Shaker Heights. He also maintained a winter home in Orlando, Fla.

Surviving are his wife, Ada; three nieces who made their home with the Rounds since childhood, Mrs. Catherine Nocar, Mrs. Evelyn Nocar and Mrs. Thelma Holtz; three brothers and four sisters.

Services are to be held at 1 p. m. Monday at the Thomas funeral home, 12512 Miles Avenue S. E., with burial in Knollwood Mausoleum.

Smythe, district sales manager of the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co., Marcus L. Smythe, president of the A. B. Smythe Co., and Mrs. Donald Tahsler whose husband is associated with Strong, Carlisle & Hammond Co.

Mrs. Loomis lived in Cleveland from 1918 to 1921 after leaving Oil City where her husband, Charles M., had been president of the Oil City Trust Co. He died in 1905. For the last 30 years Mrs. Loomis had made her home in North East. Services will be held there Monday.

Mr. Burton returned to Cleveland where he was associated with several coal companies before he owned and operated his own concern, the J. P. Burton Coal Co. He retired 15 years ago.

Mr. Burton was a member of Trinity Episcopal Cathedral, and also belonged to the Union Club and the Tavern Club.

GEORGE H. BEATTIE

For many years Clevelanders have paused to admire the jewel arrangements in the Beattie window on the lower level of the Arcade.

Yesterday the display was different. It spelled out: "George H. Beattie, 1873-1949." For the man who had made the jewel arrangements for so many years had died quietly at his home, 2911 Fontenay Road, Shaker Heights, early in the morning.

GEORGE H. BEATTIE

Mrs. Beattie, however, had come down and opened the shop, taken out the last arrangement he had made—one for the Fourth of July—and substituted the one that gave many who had not known him, but had known his work, a distinct personal sense of loss.

"We must keep the store open," Mrs. Beattie said. "So many young persons have wedding rings on order at this time of year."

George Hamilton Beattie came to Cleveland with his parents from Stratford, Ont., when he was five. In his apprenticeship to his brother, Hugh W., he early showed an artistic bent.

He left the family firm and established his own business in the Arcade 32 years ago. The shop he opened is more like a jewel box than a store, for all the cases are covered with hand carvings. The place of honor was reserved, not for merchandise, but for pieces he had executed out of love for his materials — diamonds and gold, opals, aquamarines and amethysts.

Deeply religious, Mr. Beattie found inspiration for his favorite designs in the works of God—flowers, leaves, trees and fruits. The religious feeling that Mr. Beattie brought to his work carried over into his leisure hours. He was chairman of the Christian Businessmen's Committee of Cleveland, a deacon of Hough Avenue Baptist Church and treasurer of City Mission. His private charities were many.

In 1914 he married Miss Mary Mossman of New Castle, Pa., a jeweler like himself, and the 11th generation of a family of Scottish goldsmiths.

Besides Mrs. Beattie, he is survived by a son, George, jr., an art teacher in Atlanta; another son, Samuel Mossman, associated with his father in the store; three daughters, Miss Elizabeth Helen, of Cleveland; Mrs. Mary Jane MacKay of Quebec and Mrs. Sophia Bianning of Pittsburgh.

Three brothers also survive: Hugh W. and Arthur M., both Cleveland jewelers and Rev. James C. Beattie of Detroit.

Services will be held at Hough Avenue Baptist Church at 2:30 p. m. Monday. Friends may call at the Jay Parrish funeral home, 12921 Euclid Avenue, East Cleveland.

MRS. ANDREW HRIVNAK

Mrs. Mary Hrivnak, prominent Lakewood lodgewoman and wife of Andrew Hrivnak, died yesterday in Lutheran Hospital. She was 59.

Born in Cleveland, she had lived in Lakewood most of her life. Mrs. Hrivnak was treasurer for a number of years of Lakewood Chapter No. 15, Zivena Lodge. She was also an active member of SS. Peter and Paul's Lutheran Church.

Her husband, Andrew, is an employee of the City of Lakewood.

Besides him, she is survived by three sons, John, Andrew, jr., and Edward G.; a daughter, Ann, three sisters and two brothers.

Friends may call at the Scerba funeral home, 13430 Madison Avenue, Lakewood, after 7 tonight and until 11 a. m. Monday. Services are to be held at 1:30 p. m. Monday at SS. Peter and Paul's Church, 13028 Madison Avenue, Lakewood.

HARLAND E. BOYD

Harland E. Boyd, regional business manager for the Chilton Publications, automotive trade journal publishers in the National City Bank Building, died yesterday at his home, 14493 East Carroll Boulevard, University Heights.

Mr. Boyd was born in Harmony, Wis., and attended Valparaiso University, Valparaiso, Ind. He lived in Cleveland from 1915 to 1925 when he moved to Philadelphia, returning here finally in 1933.

He was a member of First Church of Christ Scientist.

A member of Euclid Masonic Lodge, he also belonged to Al Koran Temple, the Shrine Luncheon Club and Lake Erie Consistory. Mr. Boyd belonged to the Manakiki Country Club and the Mid-Day Club.

Surviving him are his wife, Minnie L.; three daughters, Mrs. Sarabelle Hoopes of Boston, Mrs. Margaret B. Davis of Detroit and Mrs. Wilma Law of Chagrin Falls, and three grandchildren.

Services will be at 3 p. m. Monday at the Bennett-Sharer funeral home, 11212 Euclid Avenue, with burial in Acacia Memorial Park.

Congress Split on Farm Policy; House Group Hits Aiken Act

WASHINGTON, July 8—(AP)—The House agriculture committee declared today that Secretary of Agriculture Brannan would be legally "fancy-free" to wreck the nation's farm economy if the delayed-action Aiken Farm Price Act is allowed to take effect next year.

The committee added quickly it did not intend to suggest that Brannan would do so. It asked, however:

"Who knows how long he wishes to serve as secretary of agriculture or who his successor will be?"

The committee offered its views in a formal report recommending passage of the Pace crop pricing bill, less than 24 hours after farm lawmakers in the Senate had reached a tentative agreement with Secretary Brannan on a much different measure.

House Would Repeal It

The House bill would repeal the Aiken law before it has a chance to go into effect next Jan. 1. The tentative compromise worked out in the Senate committee would step up its effective date instead.

The Aiken law, passed by the Republican 80th Congress, would establish a system of flexible price supports, ranging from 60% to 90% of parity, effective in 1950. These would replace the present rigid 90% of parity standards now in effect for major crops.

(Parity is a level calculated to give farmers purchasing power equal to that they enjoyed in a specified period in the past.)

The House committee hit hard at the principles of the Aiken law, which it said, "does not place any restrictions, conditions or limitations on the authority of the secretary of agriculture in the use of production payments."

Forecast Cotton Curbs

A return to prewar production controls on the 1950 cotton crop was foreshadowed by a government report showing a sharp increase in the acreage planted for this year's crop.
